LEST WE FORGET

In this issue

This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the end of World War II, and St. Andrew's, through the pages of The Andrean, looks back and remembers. The names of our forty-five Old Boys killed in World War Two grace the cover of the magazine. The School Chapel stands as a Memorial to them, and to the 113 Old Boys who paid the supreme sacrifice in the First War.

Kingsley Ward, a member of the Board of Governors of the College, and a noted Canadian author and War historian, writes about Andreans at War in his piece 'Their name liveth for evermore'. Peter Bedard '83 interviewed Old Boys and former masters and his An Andrean Diary gives us his impression of what it was like to be a student here during that time. Scott Jolliffe '69, Cadet Commanding Officer and Head Prefect in his graduating year, looks at the relevance of Cadets in the 1990's. The editorial was written by and delivered to the student body at the annual inspection by Major General Gary Rapmund '45, fifty years after he himself led the Corps as a graduating student.

Sincere thanks to Margaret Britnell, mother of Jamie '78 and Tim '82 for her photographs of The Canadian War Cemetery at Beny-Sur-Mer and of the graves of the St. Andrew's boys who died in France.

We hope our young alumni readers will reflect on the late Colonel F.A. Tilston's words in the Introduction to Kingsley Ward's book Courage Remembered:

"Let us remember that both wars were ones of defence, fought by the Commonwealth Armies and their allies to avoid conquest by a dictator... free government is not lightly come by, nor is it lightly held. Freedom must be earned by a whole people, lived by a whole people, and fought for to the death by everyone who shares in its glorious benefits."

The Andrean is published by St. Andrew's College, for alumni, parents and friends of the School.

Fifty years after Gary Rapmund was Cadet Commanding Officer, he returned to St. Andrew's to perform the duties of Reviewing Officer at the 1995 Cadet Inspection. Dr. Rapmund has had a distinguished career in the United States Medical Corps, recently retiring with the rank of Major General.

Military reviewing and inspecting officers look for precision, teamwork, appearance, evidence of fitness and stamina, leadership by officers and non-commissioned officers. You have earned high marks on all of them from me this afternoon.

Let me say how pleased I am to be here today, and how proud I am to be an Andean. This afternoon you represent a tradition of service in action and military training in a cadet corps setting. You have retained the Cadet Corps when others have given it up. I hope it will always be a part of an Andean education.

The trend today is toward individual activity in sports, in business - such as a workplace in the home - and in education, where the PC and virtual reality are transforming the classroom into little islands of images and sound for single individuals. That technology provides for teamwork in cyberspace all over the world but it doesn't provide training with real people in teamwork and group discipline toward a common goal. The Cadet Corps does, and it is wonderful to see.

This weekend begins the celebration of VE Day - Victory in Europe fifty years ago. Andeans served proudly, with great accomplishments, in that conflict. A high percentage of all Andeans served, and forty-five died, as the plaque in the Chapel commemorates, including some whom I knew well. One of those - David Dickie - will be especially familiar by name to all of you in Memorial House.

My compliments on your performance here this afternoon — to your Commanding Officer, Cadet Lt. Col. Catrall, and to each and every one of you. Special recognition is due to the members of the band who contribute so much to St. Andrew's College.

Congratulations on your fine work. I salute you.

G. Rapmund

THEIR NAME LIVETH
FOR EVERMORE

Following World War I, Rudyard Kipling selected the phrase Their Name Liveth For Evermore from Ecclesiasticus, chapter 44, verse 14, as an appropriate inscription for The Stone of Remembrance located in most British Commonwealth Military Cemeteries.

The 50th anniversary of the end of World War II having recently been commemorated, we tend to reflect on those who were killed. Hopefully, we will do so 'evermore'. Forty-five Andreans lost their lives in this War.

The names of these young men will bring back sad memories to those who knew them or served with them; to their remaining families, even sadder thoughts of what 'might have been' for a beloved brother, husband or father. Most parents of these men will have passed on by now, but stop and reflect for a moment on the days, months and years of anguish these mothers and fathers suffered not knowing if their child would survive. Sorrowfully, many were greeted by the fateful telegram advising that their son did not.

Mrs. Evan Jane Reid wrote to St. Andrew's following the loss of her son, Wing Commander George Reid, killed over the Mediterranean in 1943, his body never found: "What a tragedy this war is. If one could see down in to the houses scattered over our country - to say nothing of all the countries in the world, I don't think we could bear the sight of the sorrow."

Five hundred and ninety-four Andreans served in the Armed Forces in almost every theatre of the Second World War. Thirty-eight of the forty-five lost were officers, as were seventy percent of the whole. A number of these stepped down from officer's rank to private in order to hasten getting shipped overseas to fight. Sixty-four St. Andrew's men were cited for bravery.

I recently visited the gravesites of the three Andreans who were killed in Italy. In Cassino, lies a former head prefect and all-around student, Lieutenant David Dickie. On the Adriatic Coast, in Ancona, lies Lieutenant Colonel Robert Armstrong, a former ADC to Ontario's Lieutenant Governor. A few miles north of there, lies Captain George Hungerford who died leading his company into action in the heavy fighting at Coriano Ridge. He was one of S.A.C.'s star athletes.

Two brothers who attended St. Andrew's were from Cleveland, Ohio. Both were destined to lose their lives in the U.S. forces: Martin Harter, flying over Germany, February 19, 1945; and his brother, Robert Jr., over Borneo, four months later.

The O'Hara family also lost two brothers in the war, one of whom, F/O James O'Hara, was an Andean.

After almost six long years of war, F/O Edward Bryden was shot down over Lubeck, Germany, in April 1945 - just two weeks before the war ended. Equally difficult to bear was the loss of Captain Philip Grandjean, killed just one week before the war ended. He was well known to the late Major Fred Tilston VC, having served in the same regiment, the Essex Scottish. Andean, Lieutenant George Ponsford of this regiment, killed in Normandy, was also well known to the Major.

As respectfully as we remember the fallen, we also remember those Andeans who survived the war. A number served in both wars, including Major E.R. Allen, MC, Lieutenant Colonel G.T. Cassels MBE, MC, Colonel F.S. Milligan, MC and Major General H.F.H. Hertzberg, CB, CMG, DSO, MC. (Major General Hertzberg's brother, Major General Charles S.L. Hertzberg, CB, MC, VD, also fought in WW I but died on active service in India during WW II.)

Two Masters who served with distinction were Air Commodore G.S. O'Brian, CBE, AFC and Group Captain J.B. Millward, DFC & Bar, MID.

Many St. Andrew's men joined the Air Force. In bomber command, especially in 1943 and 1944, many did not survive thirty bombing flights which constituted a 'tour'. Those who did were allowed to stand down from further bombing raids. Among those who completed their 'tour' were F/O A.J. Augustine, F/O R.E. MacKerrow, DFC, MID, and Flight Lieutenant J.E. Sisman, DFC.

Flight Lieutenant James A. O'Brian led a charmed life as a Hurricane and Spitfire pilot, having survived being shot down twice. Not so fortunate was Group Captain F.C. Carling-Kelly, AFC, shot down over Stuttgart, Germany, and taken prisoner.

In the navy, Lieutenant M.B.E. Clarkson and Sub-Lieutenant Jack Chipman survived convoy runs to Murmansk, Russia, one of the toughest naval assignments in the war. They were ably assisted on these runs by fellow Andean Lieutenant J.D. Perrin, who sailed all over the coast of Europe, including the Mediterranean during his five years at sea. Lieutenant Eddie Ballon, a current Governor of St. Andrew's, served on the frigate Sea Cliff and, fought the Germans all over the Atlantic, the Irish Sea, and the English Channel.

In the army, recently deceased Captain J.G. Housser earned a Military Cross at Dieppe, then endured two and one-half years as a prisoner of war. He was the father of John Housser, a Governor of St. Andrew's. Lost at Dieppe was captain Erskine Eaton, a member of the renowned Eaton family of Toronto.

Brigadier J.F. Bingham, CBE, MID, who enlisted September 1, 1939, as a Lieutenant, served in a tank regiment in Sicily, Italy, and in Northwest Europe. Major G.J. Piggott somehow ended up in the Australian Army fighting in the terrible jungle battles of New Guinea, Bougainville and Saipan.

Staff Sergeant D.A. Foerster served in the U.S. Army and was awarded a Bronze Star for gallantry. Captain T.C. Gordon served in the U.S./Canadian combined regiment, The First Special Service Force, and was awarded the Silver Star, a top U.S. Gallantry award, for his bravery at Anzio, Italy. He was twice wounded.

Captain W.B. Wadds was an officer in the Three Rivers Regiment, a tank force. He fought through Sicily, Italy and in Holland. During my recent trip to Italy, I visited the gravesites of many who paid the supreme sacrifice from this regiment.

Others who served with great distinction are too many to all be noted here. In researching this article from the archives at St. Andrew's, it was abundantly clear that Andreans played a strong individualistic role in the War but because awards are not always bestowed on all who deserve them, I am certain that many others who also undoubtedly deserved them, were never cited for their valour.

The ability to lead in a time of great strife is not common to every man but there is no doubt that the character development that took place at St. Andrew's during the formative years of these men's lives equipped them with the leadership qualities necessary to show others the way. How loyal they were to our School motto Quit ye like men, be strong which is engraved on the headstone of Andrean, Lieutenant J.A.C. Carrick, in Brookwood Cemetery, just outside London. Lieutenant Carrick was a top athlete at S.A.C. and later, a member of the Toronto Argonauts football team. He was killed while carrying out his duties on a motorcycle during a night convoy movement.

Let there be a resolve to remember all these men - those who survived and those who did not - for only because of such men do we savour the freedom we have today. Remember that when next you look at their names on the tablets in the Chapel or meet an S.A.C. veteran. Help ensure that Their Name Liveth For Evermore.

G. Kingsley Ward

October 1939

Dear Diary,

Well, I've been at St. Andrew's for over a month now and I'm really starting to feel better about coming here. At first I thought that I wouldn't be able to handle being so far from home but from the first day when Miss Brookes, the Headmaster's secretary, took me and the forty other new boys around the campus, I knew I would be fine.

I'm so busy that I haven't had much time to think about being away. In the morning I get up and eat the butter-less toast and gluey porridge that the waitresses serve me in the Flavelle House Dining Room. Then it's off to Chapel to sing and pray and to hear the Headmaster, Mr. Ketchum, give a speech. Today's lecture was on the evils of procrastination.

After Chapel we have classes. This term, I'm taking Literature, Latin, Scripture, Algebra, Science, Geometry, History and Composition. Today, in Composition class, some students were asked to write an essay about what life would be like on the Moon. Because I am participating in the debates next week, I was given the class to prepare my speech. The topic is: "Be it resolved that co-education at St. Andrew's would be detrimental to the mental development of both boys and girls". I am arguing for the affirmative and I get the sense that the majority of the students agree, although they might not admit it.

I made the Macdonald House soccer team this year and we practice almost every day. For the first time in years we beat Crescent. Because there is no soccer in the Upper School, I will probably try out for football next year. Hockey season starts in December and the Mac House team is scheduled to play UCC at Maple Leaf Gardens.

After Chapel tomorrow, we will begin practising for the annual Carol Service, to be held in December at the School. The Service is going to be broadcast over CFRB radio.

I'm thinking about joining the Junior Conservatory Orchestra conducted by Miss Adamson. Along with classics by Bach and Corelli, they are now playing modern tunes by George Gershwin, Hoagy Carmichael and Irving Berlin. Mr. Ouchterlony, the Music teacher, says that musical genius has taken on an unpleasant meaning, too closely linked with long hair, absent mindedness and lack of soap and water.

This is the first year in a while that S.A.C. will be putting on School plays. The first play is called The Housemaster and the proceeds from it will be donated to crippled children. Mr. Ives, the Assistant Housemaster in Mac House, has adapted St. Joan and has asked me to join the cast. There are plans to build a theatre at the end of Dunlap Hall in the next couple of years.

Three days a week, after classes, we have Cadets, which is run by Mr. Wright. Most of the boys complain about Cadets, but I don't mind it because the autumn Church Parade (there is also one in the spring) is coming up and we get to march past Branksome Hall on our way to St. Paul's Cathedral. Many Old Boys plus former masters who have enlisted in the forces come out to the parade. There is talk that Cadets will be expanded next year because of the unrest in Europe.

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of World War II, The Andrean paints a picture of student life at St. Andrew's during the war years.

Peter Bedard '83 has written a Diary through the eyes of a mythical student - the people, the events, and the emotions expressed are real.

Research for the article was based on St. Andrew's College archival records, material from The Review and interviews with Old Boys and former S.A.C. faculty members. The Andrean is very grateful to those who provided their recollections, and especially to Peter for being the mythical student.

July, 1940

Dear Diary,

My first year at S.A.C. is coming to an end. So much has happened that I hardly know where to begin. Prize Giving will be held in the Gymnasium in Dunlap Hall on the 13th of this month. I probably won't win any academic awards, but I will be one of the 104 students to be presented with a certificate from the Royal Life Saving Society. Bruce Alspach, Head Prefect and captain of the first football team, has been named an Honourary Associate of the Society, the first Andrean ever to receive this award.

This has been a remarkable year in sports at St. Andrew's. The first basketball team won all ten of its regular season games and lost in the final of the Toronto and District Championships to Northern Vocational. Gourlay led the team with over 27 points a game. First football went undefeated in the Little Big Four, and first cricket tied UCC and Bishop Ridley for the championship. In one game, Forbes bowled ten wickets for four runs. Mr. Ketchum said that this is probably a record in Canadian cricket. S.A.C. boys, led by Hamilton I, who broke the School records in the high jump and discus at Games Day, won seven first places in the Ontario Athletic Commission meet.

As exciting as these accomplishments were, there is a new sense of seriousness on campus these days because of "The War of 1940". In Chapel, Mr. Ketchum has been stressing to us that we are vital in the war cause. He says that we need not be made more aware of the fighting, but that we should keep physically fit and mentally alert, and that we should live unselfishly and decently with each other. We must also be thrifty and smash any pessimism that we may feel.

The War has begun to influence activities at the School. In the final debate of the term, it was resolved "that conscription should be adopted in Canada as soon as possible." When a vote was taken at the end of the debate, the motion was definitely upheld.

Mr. O'Brian, master-in-charge in Mac House, left the School to become Flight Commander in charge of the ground school at Eglinton. To help with evening duties, Mr. Ketchum has created the position of house prefects. For the first time in School history, the School has held student elections. We have been given the opportunity to vote for the house prefects, the school prefects and the head prefect. A.R. Thiele won the election for head prefect. We all hope he does a good job so that these elections will continue.

Cadets was the dominant activity in the Spring Term, even though the spring Church Parade was cancelled because of what Mr. Wright called "domestic unrest". We practised almost every day this term and I joined the Sporting Rifle Club, which was formed as a branch of the Cadet training. Mr. Ketchum said that the desire on the part of each boy to do his best resulted in an almost perfect performance. He then kept up the tradition of treating the entire Corps at the Tuckshop. I sure hope this tradition continues.

January 1941

Dear Diary,

I've made a lot of new friends this year, some of whom came to S.A.C. from the British Isles because their homes were under siege. Most of these boys say that S.A.C. offers a lot more freedom to its students than the schools in England. Sewell, in Upper VI, says that if a school reaches the stage when its discipline is almost entirely in the hands of the boys, it has accomplished something towards better education.

Lappin, in Lower VI, gave an account of his journey from Liverpool to Bermuda. He witnessed ships in his convoy sink from being hit by U-Boats. His convoy was finally broken up when the two escort ships abandoned it and were sent back to England. In all, it took his ship thirteen days to make it to Bermuda. He says it was an ordeal he will never forget.

Enrolment is down in the Upper School this year. For this reason, and because some parents need to send their young children to boarding school while the father is overseas, a Primary Department has been opened up in Mac House. Of the thirty-five new boys in the Lower School, over half are in the Primary Department. They are even building a kitchen in Mac House to handle the increased food demand.

Mr. Millward, the Housemaster in Mac House, left the School to join the RCAF. He was replaced by Mr. Wright, the Cadet instructor. Mrs. Wright has taken over the Primary Department. Although things are getting crowded in Mac House, I do enjoy helping Mrs. Wright and Miss Foote with the younger boys. On Halloween, I helped organize a hunt for candy kisses, a ping pong tournament for life savers, apple-bobbing and 'pin the tail on the donkey' for Jersey Milk bars. Later, we all sat around and told ghost stories.

The debating scene continues to reflect the thoughts of war. In the S.A.C. Debate, it was "resolved that the government of a democracy should refrain from restricting individual freedom in time of war." In the Little Big Four's first-ever interschool debate, S.A.C., in the negative, defeated T.C.S. with the topic: "that only by a ruthless peace can Germany ever be prevented from again menacing the peace of the world."

J.D. Foster won the inaugural Armstrong Cup as the School's best boxer. I lost in the first round in the seventy-five pound category. In all, there were seventy-four competitors in fifteen weight classes. Boxing seems to be the most popular sport in the School. I was pleased to finish sixth in the junior cross-country, but I was passed at the finish line by little Munro who is only nine years old.

One of the highlights of my year has been joining The Review staff. A constitution has been drawn up to make the editors of The Review responsible and accountable to the Headmaster for editorial content, eliminating the need for a staff advisor. For the Editorial portion of The Review, I wrote, "The Old Boys on active service are giving all that man ever gave, the present School must prove itself worthy of them, and future generations here must give Canada that leadership and loyalty that they have given."

Judging by the many essays that were submitted for publication, the war is having a significant influence on the minds of the students. Cameron, in Form V, wrote:

'Now is the time for everyone to get behind the war effort, small or large, on which our country depends. The Axis won't stop at anything; nothing is too low for it, a dead Democrat is their war cry. Let us work so that cry may never be heard in this land. Let us hope that through the united efforts of all the Democratic nations, it may be stamped from the face of the earth forever.'

April 1942

Dear Diary,

It was recently announced that Mr. Ketchum has been appointed Director of Studies at the Royal Canadian Naval College at Royal Roads, and given the acting rank of Lieutenant Commander. Many Old Boys already attend Royal Roads and the School has been dubbed 'a second St. Andrew's'. I intend to follow in their footsteps when I graduate. Mr. Ketchum has been replaced by Mr. Garrett, a former Rhodes scholar, who joined the staff last year as an English master. Dr. Robinson has been appointed Assistant Headmaster.

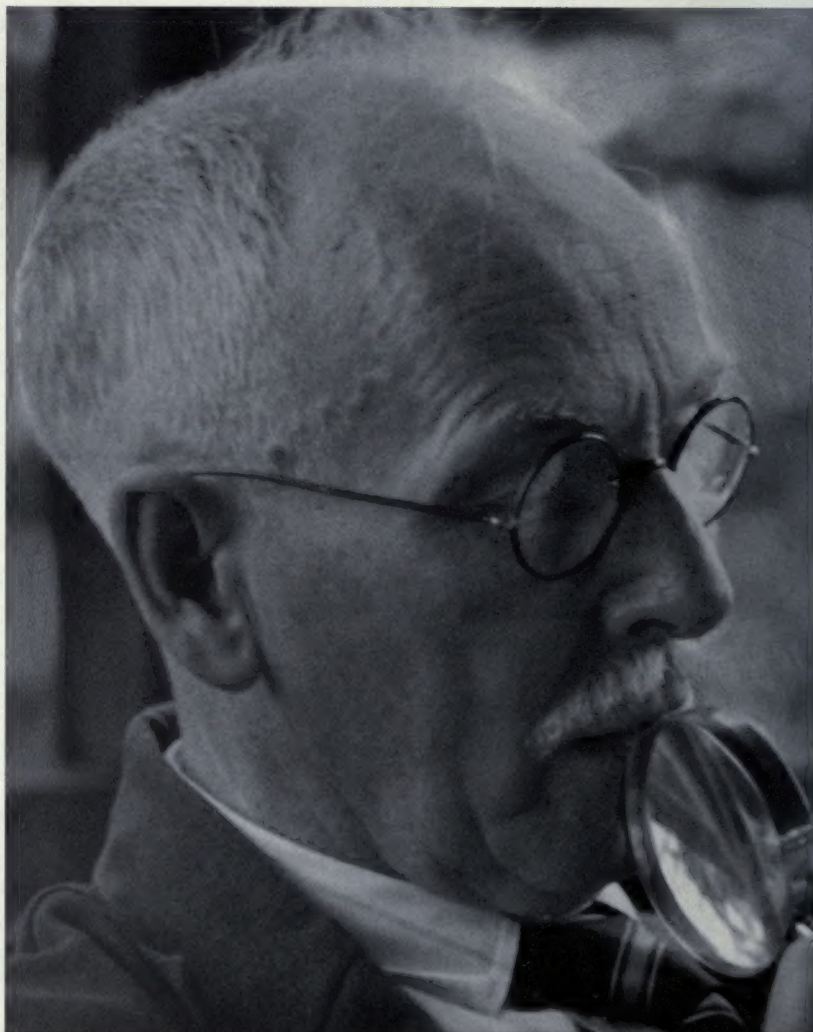

Mr. Macrae, a Mac House master, Mr. Sweeny, the Athletic Director and Mr. Toye, a Math teacher, have all left the School to join the Navy. Mrs. Tudball, "Tuddy's" wife, has been promoted to the position of Assistant National Commandant of the Canadian Red Cross. She is scheduled to have an audience with the Queen. Thiele, the graduating head prefect, has been appointed resident master in Mac House. I guess we elected a good head prefect after all.

Last Sunday, Mr. Ketchum spoke to us in Chapel about the great effort being put forward by the Ladies' Guild for the war cause. In this, their eighth year in existence, the Ladies have created the Wartime Scholarship Fund to assist a senior boy to remain at the School. They have also established a War Fund to send 300 cigarettes, maple sugar and the St. Andrew's College Review to the over 100 Old Boys serving overseas. Mr. Ketchum called the Old Boys the School's greatest strength, and we all prayed that they will "faint not nor fear" in the days ahead.

Mr. Ketchum then read from some of the letters of thanks from Old Boys that have been received by the School in response to the packages. One Andrean described how happy he felt whenever he would meet up with another Andrean overseas, how they could identify each other from across a room, and spend the rest of the evening discussing School days. Another Andrean said that the thing he most wanted when in a storm on convoy duty was to attend once again a Chapel Service at the School. A third Andrean questions why he used to grouch about going back to School.

In many ways, the whole School is getting behind the war effort. Mrs. Ketchum, with the help of Worling and the Lower II, have planted a large garden as a war measure, because of increased food rationing. Mr. Ives has created a War Savings Stamp Campaign, which is earning $75 per term. Each week, when pocket money is given out, many boys invest all of their weekly allowance in War Stamps, except perhaps for five cents which is saved for Chapel collection.

Some of the students are collecting scrap metal to donate to the war cause. Many of us are planning to join the Farm Service Force this summer, to help fight the critical labour shortage in the production of food. I'm going to apply at the Selective Service depot and take my chances as to which farm I will be drafted. I hear the work, weeding and picking fruit, is boring, but you get to meet many interesting people and there is a real feeling of purpose and accomplishment among the students.

The War has caused St. Andrew's to tighten its belt in a number of ways. Food and labour have been reduced to necessity levels. Gasoline has been rationed to the point where extra-curricular activities have been reduced, or in some cases, eliminated. Most Lower School games this year were cancelled or scheduled against local opponents.

At the beginning of the Winter Term, because of the impossibility of obtaining kitchen staff, the boys in the Upper School took upon themselves the task of waiting on the tables. In the first four months, only two shifts of waiters went through an entire week without breakages. This should convince the School to make student-waiting a temporary measure during the War.

Dear Diary,

This year, inter-school activities have been further reduced by the transportation crisis, war measures and time constraints brought on by increased Cadet training. The debating program took a back seat to leave more time for Cadets. The autumn Church Parade was moved from Toronto to Aurora. Lower School hockey cancelled its games against T.C.S. and Lakefield and decided not to travel from Aurora. The first basketball team didn't have a coach, yet still managed a 5-5 record. The first football team lost all nine of its games and was outscored 391-15. Some bright spots were that the swim team won the Little Big Four and that gymnastics and soccer were introduced in the Upper School.

As it always does, the School has responded to difficulties with creativity and vision. Because of the transportation situation, the School has divided itself into four clans: Douglas, Wallace, Montrose and Bruce, so that the students can still experience teamwork and competition. Points are awarded to each clan based on athletics, school work and Cadet Corps activities. At the end of the year, the Intra-Mural Challenge Cup will be presented by H.B. Housser (an Old Boy from the School's first year) whose son John is a prisoner of war in Germany, to the winning clan. Student interest in the clan competition has been enthusiastic and I'm sure this structure will continue long after the War has ended.

This year, we received the Carnegie Music Award, presented to active music departments of high standing. The award included a Magnavox box radio-phonograph combination, and 648 records with albums.

The "Little Theatre" in Dunlap Hall, funded by the Ladies' Guild and constructed by the students, officially opened last week. "The Bishop Misbehaves", starring Cotter as the Bishop and Eddis as Lady Lyons, was presented to a full and appreciative audience. After the play, Mr. Ouchterlony showed us motion pictures on a projector he had brought back from Toronto.

Cadet training has intensified and has become more realistic. We drill before Chapel, after School, and after supper.

Using the precedent set in the Boer War, when the scarlet tunic was replaced here by khaki because of "the vulnerability of the scarlet", Mr. Wright decided to change the official Cadet dress for the duration of the War. The kilt and red tunic were replaced by glengarry, tartan tie, khaki shirt, white belt, khaki shorts, khaki stockings with red garters and black shoes. Officers still wear the kilts for parade purposes.

Led by the effort and hard work of Mr. Wright and Crawford, our C.O., the St. Andrew's College Cadet Corps has become one of the most up-to-date corps in Canada. At the annual inspection, the inspecting officer, Lieutenant Colonel K.M. Holloway said: "sometimes I have to make critical remarks, but this is the best demonstration I have ever seen in my life by any cadet corps."

The students have been instructed on the handling of the Bren gun, on cleaning, loading, aiming and firing rifles, on map reading and signalling, and in defensive chemical warfare.

The ski platoon, led by Cadet Captain Lowndes, is the first of its kind in Canada. One day this winter, they left the School at 10:00 am, travelled twenty-seven miles via Bradford, marched across Holland Marsh, and returned at 7:30 pm.

St. Andrew's College Review

Our Band took part in the musical parade at Maple Leaf Gardens with the 48th Highlanders. The parade was a benefit for the officers and men of the 48th who are serving overseas. In all, there were over 6,000 people in attendance. The entire Corps participated in the Royal Canadian Army Cadet Parade at Varsity Stadium in Toronto. We joined 3,500 cadets in the march from the University of Toronto and we were given a huge ovation as we entered the stadium.

September 1944

Dear Diary,

I have begun my final year at St. Andrew's, and I'm starting to see a resurgence in School spirit, coinciding with the largest student enrolment since 1935. A friendly rivalry has been created between 'De Mob' (boys in Flavelle House led by Howson and Little) and 'The Group' (Memorial, led by Chipman and Shields). This spirit has carried over into the best Hell Week that I can remember.

During Hell Week, new boys have been compelled to run from building to building, using only back entrances and showing identity cards. They have been given strict orders to be silent in the dining room, while they are forced to eat "square meals" - moving their hands in straight vertical and horizontal lines only. On Saturday night in the gym, we will hold the grand initiation.

Swimming continues to grab most of the headlines in School sports. Led by Robertson, who last year broke the Little Big Four record in the 200 freestyle, the team hopes to win its third consecutive championship. A record one hundred and fourteen students, spanning fifteen age and weight classes, will be competing in the School boxing tournament next month. Joe Taylor broke the School 3.5 mile cross-country record by 22 seconds in sub-zero temperature.

Of course, not everything is back to normal. The Little Big Four has suspended the cricket program for the duration, due to insufficient equipment. To compensate for lack of help in the kitchen, the waiters on Sunday evenings were asked to wash and dry the dishes and clean up the dining room and kitchen. At the beginning of the term for three weeks, a janitor could not be found for Flavelle and Memorial and so each morning, seven boys swept the halls, the library and cleaned the bathrooms.

Commander Ketchum visited the School last week and spoke in Chapel about the advantages of attending the Royal Canadian Naval College. He told us that five hundred Old Boys were on active service and two hundred and fifty were overseas. He also informed us that Mr. Millward, my former housemaster, had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

From Mr. Millward's citation, he read: "On two occasions, this officer has flown his aircraft safely back to base although damage has been sustained from enemy action. He has also had much success in securing photographs of the target area. As deputy flight commander, Squadron Leader Millward has assisted in building up the squadron to its present high state of efficiency. The quiet determination with which he completed his duties has won him the admiration and respect of all."

IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED

Dear Diary,

Today we were told that Mr. Garrett will be leaving at the end of this term to join the English Department at Trinity College. The Board of Governors of St. Andrew's applied to the government for Mr. Ketchum's release from Royal Roads. The government expressed the wish that he stay permanently, but because of the apparent end to the fighting, left the decision to Mr. Ketchum. Fortunately for the School, he has decided to return.

As one of six prefects in my graduating class, I have been asked to give a speech greeting Mr. Ketchum and describing some of the events which took place during his absence. These lunch speeches, and the readings that we do in Chapel, are intended to improve the public speaking of the students. These opportunities have equipped me well to begin officer training upon graduation.

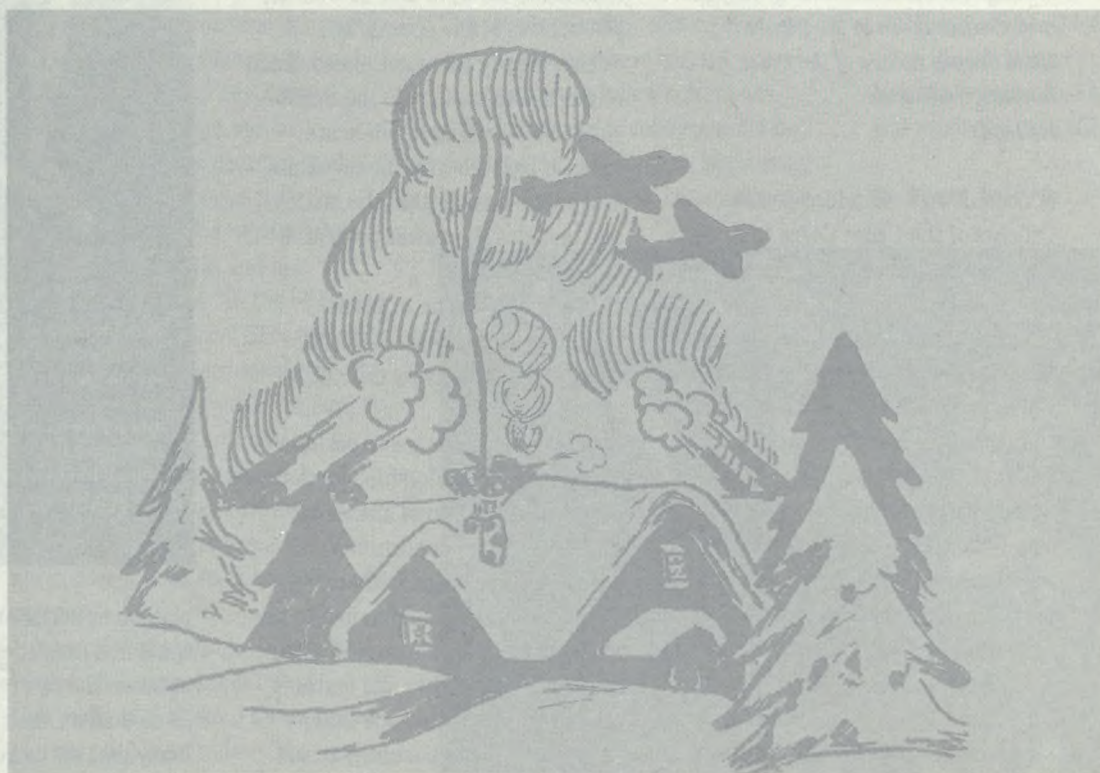

To prepare for the speech, I have reflected on some of the memories that have stuck in my mind since I first arrived six years ago. I remember thinking how far St. Andrew's was away from Toronto, never imagining that one long-weekend I would walk all the way home. I also remember how big the campus seemed and how I thought I'd never learn to find my way around.

I remember sitting in the Mac House library after study reading David Copperfield or one of the many books by my favourite author, Edgar Rice Burroughs. I remember poring over the pictures in Life Magazine, because my crystal set was confiscated by Mr. Tudball and I was unable to listen to the radio transmissions covering the War.

I remember the autumn Church Parade of 1942, when we marched to Queen's Park and Captain Milligan laid a wreath on the 48th Highlanders of Canada Memorial in honour of their 50th anniversary. It was an emotional occasion.

I remember Douglas Hampson, an Old Boy from 1935-39, who joined the RCAF and flew a plane back to the campus to perform some tricks and to show off to the students. Somehow he lost control of his plane and crashed into the hill west of the School buildings. I remember how hard we all laughed when we saw that he was safe. The next year, when it was reported that his plane had gone missing in battle and that he was presumed dead, I remember how hard I cried.

I will always remember the impact that the War has had on the School life: the discipline in the houses and the classrooms, the improvements in Cadets, the infectious sense of energy and pride. The School has matured greatly in the past few years and it is well positioned to face life in the new era. Funny, I feel the same way myself.

The Officer

He is true to his convictions and loyal to those whom he serves.

He has great care for those whom he commands, and he rightfully expects their best.

He strives for wisdom in his judgments and he is bold in decision.

He is competent and has faith in himself.

He is sincere.

He welcomes challenge and endures hurt with courage.

He possesses a gentleman's pride, humility and grace.

He respects the traditions of the past and creates those of the future.

He is deeply aware of the trust, his honour is absolute.

He leads.

R. Scott Jolliffe '69 addressed the Officers of the Cadet Corps in April. His remarks follow.

Let me put my experience as the Commanding Officer of the Cadet Corps in 1968/69 into context. At that time, the world was in the midst of the social, cultural, sexual and political revolution of the 1960s. The youth of the time, students and minorities were rebelling against everything: established values, institutions, laws and the so-called 'establishment' itself. Peace was a huge issue at the time; there was a significant anti-Viet Nam, anti-war, anti-military and 'anti-' just-about-everything-else movement. 'Make love, not war' was the slogan of the decade.

You can imagine the difficulties that St. Andrew's College had in dealing with these issues. The School was more rigid back then. Change was as difficult for the School as it was for conservative middle-class America. Many of us remember with a smile the 1968 Cadet Inspection when, as our visiting dignitary was inspecting the troops, an anti-war song came blasting over the loud speakers onto the quad.

We had fun. And to the School's credit, with a youthful staff and good leadership we were able to weather the turmoil of the sixties. The School clearly came out ahead. Each of you is a testament to the School's success in striking the delicate balance between traditional values and hectic change that the sixties and decades thereafter presented for St. Andrew's.

Leadership is one of those traditional values that is perhaps easy to define but very difficult to embrace.

Many people confuse a position of authority with leadership. On the contrary, a position of authority merely gives the opportunity, and not the ability, to lead others. As John F. Kennedy had planned to say in a speech in Dallas on November 22, 1963, "Leadership and learning are indispensable to each other".

You have the opportunity to see and test what works in terms of your leadership ability. In your environment many of the variables are fixed. Generally your commands are obeyed because of your position and senior status at the School.

You have the opportunity to experience the difference between good leadership and mediocre or bad leadership. For example, you can command a right turn and have a very sloppy, disorganized turn. On the other hand, you can have a very sharp, disciplined turn where the platoon or battalion is together in spirit and execution. The difference between the two types of turns has a lot to do with their leadership. It is likely that in the latter case you have the interest, enthusiasm and respect of the people that you are leading, and in the other case you do not.

Bert Munns has supervised the School's Cadet stores as a Civilian Instructor since 1986. Bert was a member of the Parachute Regiment and jumped on D-Day, 1944. Following the war, he joined the Canadian Forces and following that worked for Sears until retirement.

How do you generate interest, enthusiasm and respect amongst those whom you lead? Your position of authority certainly does not instill these qualities.

My experience has taught me that you must begin with these qualities yourself before you can expect them from those whom you lead. 'Interest' is your dedication to perfection in a goal which you have in common with those whom you lead. 'Enthusiasm' is an infectious personal quality that spreads to others to embrace your interest. 'Respect' is an attitude that goes deeper than mere respect for position. It includes a genuine regard for the personal views, concerns and interests of others.

Let me give you a few examples of the opportunities for leadership that I have fallen in to since leaving the School.

After I left S.A.C., I took a summer job as a dishwasher at Lake Louise. Because of the rapid turnover of the dishwashing staff, I soon found myself in the position of being the head kitchen steward. The staff were much older than I was; salt-of-the-earth transient types who lived for their next pay cheque and generally had no interest in whether the dishes were clean or the silver shone. The challenge was to motivate a group of disinterested older people who began their relationship with the head kitchen steward with disdain and not respect. My 'interest' in the cleanest silver, my 'enthusiasm' for a job well done, and my 'respect' for them made the job much easier. In fact, by the end of the summer, I found it had become a rather simple, uncomplicated task, working with very real people. I enjoyed it so much I went back for a second summer.

Several years later, as a fourth year engineering student at the University of Toronto, I found myself in a very different milieu. My peers were a much more complex, ambitious and diverse group of Canadians and foreign students.

When I was elected to the position of President of the Engineering Society the challenge was to get the student body interested in student functions and projects which were purely extra-curricular and, at least on the surface, of no importance to the careers that they were studying for. But we had a terrific year that year which, looking back on it, was the result of the unwavering interest, contagious enthusiasm and genuine respect that we, as the student leaders in the faculty, had in and for the student body and the responsibilities vested in us.

The most challenging leadership role that I have had is the one that I currently find myself in. I am the managing partner of a law firm which is about the size of St. Andrew's, with 180 partners and over 600 junior lawyers, para-legals, agents and support staff. Amongst the partners everyone is essentially equal. There are no artificial mantles of leadership. The partners are all 'leaders' themselves; very intelligent, successful, determined and opinionated — for good reason.

Leadership in this type of group is akin to shepherding a herd of stray cats. Generally there is no requirement to follow commands. Even the desire to follow cannot be assumed. In this context, identifying the common interest, generating the necessary enthusiasm and ensuring a relationship of mutual respect make the difference between good and bad leadership.

The challenge of leadership will be more difficult for you than it was for me and my peers. In the context of the 1990s in Canada, where choices are more openly available and freedom and equality are paramount, you can expect little support from any position of authority that you may find yourself in. In fact, you will find that having the 'position' starts you off at a disadvantage. Don't expect others to follow your commands. Help them to want to. Create a common interest, let your enthusiasm spread, practice respect, and leadership will follow.

I have very fond memories of St. Andrew's, which seem to become fonder as time goes on. As you, we all had complaints, difficult times and unfulfilled desires. But as you move away from the School, you will realize that the rest of the world is not a perfect place either. You will always have complaints, difficulties and disappointments. Those at St. Andrew's will pale by comparison.

Believe or not, the School provides a terrific environment for your formative years. Just how terrific, you won't realize until you have left.

The Headmaster reviews the junior cadets (grades seven and eight) at The Headmaster's Parade.

A highlight of the past year's Association activities was undoubtedly the reunion luncheon held May 3rd for the 'fifty and over' year classes. The luncheon was held on the day of the Headmaster's Parade and on a glorious afternoon the Old Boys and their guests enjoyed the sight of four-hundred kilted cadets performing a full dress rehearsal for the annual Inspection.

The senior Old Boy present was Bradley Rowell '23, followed closely by Russell Cumberland, class of 1924. Both gentlemen had finished at St. Andrew's before the School moved to Aurora (in 1926) and so it was special indeed for them, and for us to welcome them here.

Other Old Boys from the 30s and 40s attending included: Paul Pentland '37, whose four-part series on his Reminiscences concluded in the Spring issue of The Andean; Peter Rea '35, who has donated important memorabilia to S.A.C.'s Archives; former Cadet Commanding Officer and School Governor Ed Crawford '43; John Kilpatrick '41, who had taken the salute at the Toronto Church parade days earlier, and many other former Board members and friends of the School.

Our thanks to the boys of St. Andrew's, who graciously had 'take-out' lunches, so that we could use the Great Hall, and to Faculty members who joined us, and all of the support staff of the College who made it a special day for our many visitors.

Charlie Perowne '95 was selected the 1994-95 athlete of the year. Charlie was a member of first football, hockey and rugby for three years, and Captain of football and hockey in his final year. The Mark Oliver Memorial Trophy was presented to Sean Etherington by Mark's brother Glen '87 and his parents Don and Joan. The award is given to a graduating student making the greatest contribution to rugby over his career at St. Andrew's.

Incivility is rife. A bomb explodes in Oklahoma. A man goes on trial for raping and killing teenage girls. A squadron of the Canadian Airborne Regiment disbands after videotapes expose their 'hazing' rituals. We seem to put great emphasis on the negative in the media; perhaps we should call it the "bad news"? We have become desensitized to the 'bad', expecting yet another tragedy when we turn on the evening news. We are no longer shocked by perversity — or are we?

Every act of incivility seems to be returned by countless acts of civility. We hear the names of the murderers, but what about the people who are putting their lives on the line to benefit mankind. What of the doctors and medical staff fighting the Ebola virus in Africa, aware of the imminent danger to their lives? The hundreds of volunteers, most nameless, who helped in the rescue effort after the Oklahoma disaster? The media has the opposite effect — it makes us aware of the incivility that exists around us and encourages us to perform civil deeds. Without the mass media, the world would never have learned of Ethiopia's plight and lent a helping hand. We wouldn't have heard the story of the Canadian Airborne Regiment and forced the government to respond to the outrage.

Indeed, we can no longer hide atrocities. Those who claim we no longer have the capacity to be shocked by violence need only look to Tiananmen Square. There, the media exposed the uncivil acts of the Chinese government for the world to see. Nothing could have acted as a stronger deterrent to future incivility. Naysayers purport that our society is becoming one that condones incivility, but our reaction to these recent crises suggests that the opposite is true.

To assert that civility is decreasing would imply that we were more civil in the past. This is difficult to demonstrate. My parents can remember a time when apartheid and segregation were the norm. Some thirty years ago, the beaches of Toronto were adorned with signs reading, "No Jews Allowed". Not many decades before that, slavery was an accepted fact of life in the United States. In Feudal times, outsiders were beheaded, or hung by a hook through to their abdomen over the castle wall. We have moved into an era of increased civility — an era in which we are tolerant enough to make exceptions to the Sikh community, allowing them to maintain their heritage while taking part in our RCMP. The walls are falling down; literally, in Berlin. The Russians were the 'bad guys'; now they're our friends.

Perhaps the people who feel society is falling apart at its uncivil seams are having an experience much like Plato. In his time, Plato condemned the youth for being lazy and arrogant. Plato was neither the first nor the last to express sentiments like these. Either society has been falling apart over the past several thousand years (in which case I marvel at the Utopia Plato lives in), or every generation has looked with disdain at their offspring's behaviour. Perhaps what we accept as "courtesy and politeness" has changed. Although they certainly aren't barometers of civility, Ann Landers and Miss Manners have, time and again, adjusted their position on civility issues. We may loosen our reigns on what may have been considered unacceptable language, but tighten our grip over issues of prejudice.

Ironically, our tendency to resist change has resulted in a backlash against 'political correctness', which may more properly be described as a heightened awareness and respect for the feelings of others.

In the song, "Healing Hands", Canadian musician and singer Alan Frou sings that "These are the times, these are the days when everyone helps, and everyone prays". We haven't lost our civility; on the contrary, humans have developed a heightened sense that incivility exists, and have stepped up their struggle against it. The outrage we express when we see incivility in the mass media has precipitated many changes that direct us towards increased civility. Should we continue to fight against the lack of civility in society, we will find ourselves moving towards M. Scott Peck's world, where we remember the "glory of what it means to be human".

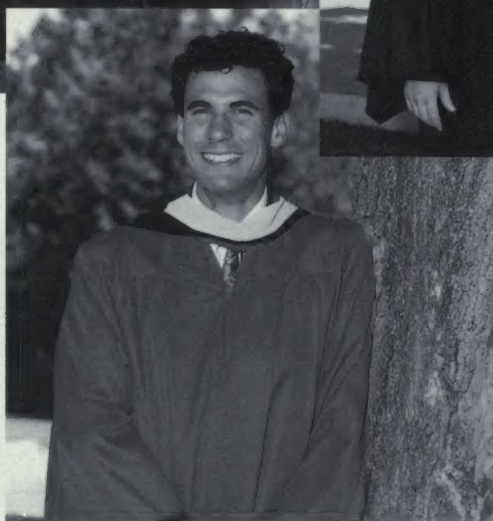

Robert Burke

Robert C. Burke stood first in the class of 1995 with an average of 96.2%. He came first in Ontario and fifth in the country in debating. Robert was one of nine students in Canada to be awarded the prestigious Chancellor's scholarship to Queen's University in Kingston.

Jane Kravchenko, B.A. (S. Carolina), B.Ed. (York), O.T.C. Jane teaches English and French and coaches volleyball and tennis. She is married to Peter Bedard '83, and they live on campus.

Michel Cameron, B.Ed. (McGill) came to St. Andrew's from Bishop's College School in Lennoxville, P. Q. Michel teaches French is head coach of first football and coach of senior squash. He and his wife Michelle live on campus with their two daughters, Alexina, 6, and Megan, 3.

W. Graydon Robson, B.A.(Hons.), B.Ed. (Windsor), O.T.C. has joined the faculty and teaches Economics and History. Graydon is an assistant coach with first football, coaches junior basketball and lacrosse. He and his wife, Tilda, live in Newmarket.

Nick Tsioros '88, B.P.E., B.Sc. M.Ed. (Boston University). Nick attended St. Andrew's for six years, graduating in 1988. He distinguished himself in Cross Country and Track and field at S.A.C. and at Boston where he was a member of the varsity track team for five years. In his final year he was "All-East Conference". Nick teaches Mathematics, Science, and Health in the Lower School, and coaches cross country and track and field.

Observant readers will note the wooden cabinet in the centre of the photo above used to be the counter in "Coach's Store". It now serves an important role in the new S.A.C. Archives.

Above, a partner's desk from the estate of the late Donald B. Spence '37 occupies a special place in the Archives.

An original dining room table was restored by the carpentry shop on campus. Many Old Boys are donating their memorabilia to the archival collection of St. Andrew's.

Dear Doug,

It is ages since I was last in touch with the School as my travels have not brought me anywhere near Toronto, much less Aurora. I have occasionally met Old Boys, and the last four were Donald Davis '46, James Hepburn '45, Sandy Cantley '52 and Fred Aspinall '45, but there again, it was a few years ago.

The Andrean mentions the 'Mexican connection' quite often, and unlike the Peruvian, the Mexican lads all go back to Mexico. The Peruvian contingent are probably now spread all over the world. I was the third person to have come to S.A.C. from Peru and this was due in great part to the fact that Stuart B. Wood (1918-25), the first to come to S.A.C. from Peru, was a neighbour of ours in Miraflores, Lima, Peru, at the time. Stuart's sons, Michael '56 and Andrew '60, also went to S.A.C. Up until 1961, there had been thirty-two students from Peru.

I am enclosing a photograph taken by B.P. Colclough, M.A., during my last year at the School in 1946, at which time there were thirteen of us attending from Peru. I thought this would be of interest to you, both for the Archives and perhaps as an historical entry in The Andrean, as it is approaching the 50-year mark since we shared a year together at S.A.C. 1945-46. I hope it proves of interest.

Looking forward to visiting the School and meeting you in the not-too-distant future.

Yours Aye,
Wm. Andrew Lindsay

The Future in Education Today

annual report

The passage of time has brought us to the climax of another academic year. For those who toil here, day by day, Prize Day is the annual harvest of our labours. For parents, it represents a goal achieved and the challenge of a new relationship with their son. For the graduates, it is a time of mixed emotions. They have worked long and hard for this day and are justly proud; but it is also a time of parting which will bring some pain.

We can safely say that the past school year has been a productive one, filled with accomplishments by individuals and by groups.

In academics, at the O.A.C. level, we are graduating 29 Ontario scholars, and, for the first time, more than 25% of the entire student body has obtained an average of 80% or more. In our initial attempt at the University of Toronto Biology Competition, we placed eighth out of 277 schools, and, in the York Region for reading and writing at the grade nine level, we placed first. Moreover, our students achieved impressive Chemistry and Mathematics results in international examinations.

Individually, we have had some striking performances to report... Robert Burke came first in the Provincial Debating tournament and then was fifth in the National Debating championship. He earned the prestigious Chancellor's scholarship to Queen's, one of nine students from all of Canada to do so. Deserving of recognition is Chris Abraham who has been awarded the Oxford summer school scholarship, the third Andrean to receive this honour in the past four years, and Geoff Cattrall who has earned thirteen O.A.C. credits - instead of the minimum six required - all in the 90% range.

You might have read about "The Love of Learning" report of the Royal Commission on Education in Ontario. Once implemented, the recommendations will have a serious effect for all High Schools. For instance, the credit system will be revamped: in order to graduate, a student will need either 21 or 22 credits from grade ten onward, with 24 credits being the absolute maximum. In effect, grade 13 will disappear.

Robert Burke, Jed Dadson, Jonathan Hood, and Jason Worry defeated the Toronto French School, a traditional powerhouse in debating... Thanks to Mr. Ray and to Mr. Arril for the countless hours spent preparing our boys.

The student body, Mr. Smith and Mr. Giel deserve a great deal of credit for orchestrating three superb demonstrations of togetherness and discipline by our Cadet Corps: the Church Parade to St. Paul's, the Headmaster's Parade for the benefit of the pre-1945 Old Boys, and a notable Inspection on the 6th of May. An S.A.C. Honour Guard and Band has been invited to participate in the Official Opening of the Fourth

In Drama, we were favoured with an adaptation of Shakespeare's Othello in the Fall under the professional direction of William Scoular. Lee and John Clements produced the delightful Innkeeper's Daughter in the Winter Term, and, during Focus, our own Arts Festival, the talents of some 150 students were featured in eleven creative and entertaining plays.

Debating also had a banner year, both in the number who participated and in the brilliant results of our best debaters. We ran a full junior debating programme for novices in the Lower School. These boys are our hope for the future. After a two-year absence, the Headmaster's Cup returned to St. Andrew's when Geoffrey Cattrall earned thirteen Ontario Academic Credits (six are required for university acceptance) all in the 90% range. Above, Geoff receives The Christopher Ball Prize for distinguished contribution to the field of the Arts from Charles Manchee, a member of the Board of Governors.

Session of the 35th Ontario Legislature in the fall.

In athletics, our representative teams at all levels upheld the St. Andrew's tradition of good sportsmanship and fair play, while garnering their share of honours. Worthy of special mention, at the First Team level, was a sensational Basketball championship. The final game kept the cheering fans in suspense, and they were rewarded by last-second heroics. As a result, S.A.C. conquered a highly skilled Upper Canada College team. Particular kudos to the Track and Field team which won the Conference of Independent Schools' title for a sixth consecutive year, and to the Senior Nordic Ski team which also won the C.I.S.A.A. title. Congratulations are owed to the Under 14 hockey team which won the Maple Leaf Gardens annual tournament, to Under 16 volleyball, Under 15 soccer and Under 16 squash all of whom were victorious in their respective categories.

The year was not without its losses. Long-time friends and supporters of the school Len Lumbers, Mike Sifton and Eleanor Rex passed away, as did Chris Richards, class of '94, a Tilston Award winner, and Donna Campbell, our Bursar's wife, for whom a fitting and well-attended memorial service was held in our Chapel.

Recuperating from setbacks, and being the recipients of best wishes for a prompt and complete recovery, are our Physics teacher, Mr. Fred Hiltz, and our Dining Hall Manager, Mr. Mike Hillick.

This report doesn't do justice to many of the year's activities, but we should underline the initiatives of the Race Relations Committee headed by Mrs. Doreen Hiltz, the Social Awareness Programme under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild, and the generous support of our Parents and of the whole community in the HELP US HELP THE CHILDREN donation drive.

As my fourteenth year as Headmaster of St. Andrew's College comes to a close, I am ever filled with deep gratitude towards all the members of this community. Gratitude towards Chairman Peter Harris and our supportive and understanding Board of Governors: last November, Mr. Harris organized an evening for all the staff and their mates at the Barnes Exhibition. This event generated immense good will and enhanced the ever-present spirit of community and mutual respect among all of us. As you know, a school's academic and extra-curricular programmes are only as strong as its major component, the faculty. Providing them with the proper setting, adequate resources, and a climate free from undue stress is the role of the Board and, through them, the Headmaster.

Continued gratitude towards our hard-working and dedicated Ladies' Guild for their generosity to so many facets of school life, to our S.A.C. Association, and to Jim Herder, the Director of Development, for his innovative ideas and their implementation, his sense of tradition and his love of all things Andrean. Gratitude to all those who, though seldom praised, complement the efforts of the afore-mentioned. A special thanks to Doug Campbell, the Assistant Headmasters, Mr. Inglis and Mr. Smith, the housemasters, and those coaches and mentors who go that extra step for the boys in so many ways.

To the readers of The Andrean, our alumni, current and past parents, and friends of S.A.C., may I add the sincere thanks from all of us in Aurora for your on-going encouragement and support of St. Andrew's College.

R. Bedard

Donations from all sources to the S.A.C. Foundation for the year ended June 30, 1995, totalled $857,000. Of that total, $362,000 was designated to be added to the Endowment Fund, and the remainder, just under one half million dollars, was transferred to St. Andrew's College.

The donations from Old Boys, Parents and Past Parents as well as a number of Canadian Foundations enabled expenditures to be made on academics, scholarships and athletics as well as a number of projects on the physical plant, now seventy years old.

To those who follow the world of computers, it will not be a revelation that on-going improvements in hardware and software require capital funding annually. St. Andrew's is fortunate in that the early planning for our campus-wide computer network, undertaken in the late 1980s, included expansion capabilities to then unheard of levels.

Old Boys were asked to support the complete renovation of the fitness facility as one of the options for their annual giving program. I am pleased to report that the fitness centre has now been doubled in size and equipped with state-of-the-art free weights, universal gym, stair climbers, stationary bicycles and a treadmill.

The most notable news on the 'development' scene was the spectacular improvement in the

S.A.C. Foundation Endowment Fund over one year ago. Chairman of the Foundation, David L. Rea '53, on behalf of the Trustees, reports that the Fund valuation as at June 30, 1995, is $7.2 million, an improvement of $1.5 million in one year.

This result was achieved due to four major factors:

- increased donations by individuals and families to their own "named" Endowment Funds [triple that of two years ago]
- The Trustees' policy of re-investing earnings dependent on the needs of the College
- excellent management of the fund by Jarislowsky, Fraser & Co. to take advantage of buoyant North American markets
- more 'planned gifts' of life insurance and bequests, large and small, from our constituents. These gifts are added to the Endowment Fund, and held in the donor's name in perpetuity.

Overall, the giving results for 1994-95 were most encouraging. May I echo the Headmaster's words in offering my sincere thanks to all who participate in keeping St. Andrew's College strong financially.

Dear Jim,

When I recently awoke at 3 a.m. and was browsing over my desk, I picked up the Fall '94 issue of "The Andean" and read Paul Pentland's 'Reminiscences'. This caused a multitude of memories to flood back to my mind, most involving the kindly attitudes and care which the Masters and staff had towards the students.

It was due to the interest of Dr. Macdonald that I was able to come to St. Andrew's in the Fall of 1934 to begin four of the most memorable years of my life. Our class, which was not noted for its decorum, noted that when "Pitt" Laidlaw came into the classroom, without looking he always flicked on the light switch. We took to coating the switch with ink, but soon gave up the prank when "Pitt" never acknowledged his ink-coated finger.

The firm, sincere remarks of Ernie Fleming have stayed with me all during my career. Mr. Fleming told us the story about buying a hamper of apples and asking the farmer why he always put the big apples on top. Without blinking, the farmer replied, "You know when we bring them in from the orchard on the wagon, the apples always jiggle around and the big ones always shake to the top". As with apples, so it is with people ... the big ones shake to the top.

When I appeared before the stern gaze of "Cicero" Robinson expressing interest in next year's Latin, he looked at me, shook his head slowly and said, "Oh! Rogers, you'd better take Chemistry".

During the years 1934-38, St. Andrew's was not noted for the success of the football team. After we had been hammered by TCS or Ridley, Mr. Ketchum would come into the gloomy dressing room and give his "Moral Victory" lecture.

Present and past Andeans owe Paul Pentland a debt of gratitude for awakening our memories of incidents in the past of those who by their teachings and attitudes have given Andeans markers to guide their lives and careers. When we are young we can never be sure what effect examples, attitudes and remarks of our teachers will have on our future attitudes as parents, friends and professionals. Andeans have been blessed by the calibre of teachers who had lead the School through the years. Long may the tradition continue.

Dear Jim,

I'm sorry to say this is my first donation since graduation. Time passes by, and the brightness of memories fade, but those memories were brought to life full-force during my visit to the Cadet Inspection. Seeing different boys in the same uniforms, doing the same things I did brought home the full meaning of 'tradition', a word often mouthed rather than meant.

S.A.C. is definitely a place where 'you get out what you put in'. Though I wish I had become involved with more aspects of School life than just academics and sports, that which I did gain in values, judgment and experience I'll cherish for the rest of my life.

Thank you for the 'walk down amnesia lane'. It was a brightly lit corridor. I'll donate to the Old Boys' fund again when able.

Dear Mike,

I'm sorry that I never had the opportunity to really get to know you while I was at S.A.C., but for my five years there, from 1987-1992, all I can say is that the food got better and I know that it was mostly due to you. I wish now that I had taken the opportunity to personally thank you.

I recently hosted the S.A.C. reunion party at Queen's university and I was amazed (as I am every year) at the unbelievable meal that you provided for us. Steak, salad and bread, it is such a treat for all of us. Words truly do not express how much we enjoy that night. So I felt it was about time that you were thanked, and not by word of mouth, for the great meal that you prepare for us. It was awesome — thank you!

I am one of those graduates who truly feels the St. Andrew's experience was a marvellous one, and you are one of the big reasons.

Thank you very much, Mike,

Dear Mr. Bedard,

Congratulations! St. Andrew's College operated the third largest lifesaving program for an affiliated Ontario secondary school in 1994.

Your accomplishment is recorded in our Annual Report, a copy of which I'm pleased to enclose. I draw your attention specifically to the results for the Cochrane Shield.

This standing is a reflection of the conscientious efforts of your aquatic staff. Please accept our congratulations and thank them for their work in providing drowning prevention education.

The theme for the 1995 Red & White Party 'Goes International' was chosen to help celebrate the multi-cultural aspect of our School. What didn't change was the formula for a casual, fun night at St. Andrew's which was enjoyed by a sell-out crowd of parents, past parents and a growing number of Old Boys and their wives.

Co-conveners Pat Wakefield and Diane Wettlaufer did a terrific job of running the event with great support from Vera Ennis, the Ladies' Guild Executive, and Edna Collins who is the special events co-ordinator in the Development Office.

The decorating committee was assisted by most foreign embassies with contributions of posters and flags. Some of our guests arrived in costume dress, while most stayed with the tried and true, 'red and white'.

Fun-raising was on the agenda, as new members of the Andrean community met their peers. Fund-raising was also a priority. A live auction, run by Brian Bell, Auctioneer, and a silent auction with wonderful prizes, raised over $50,000 for the Scholarship and Bursary program and the Ladies' Guild Endowment Fund.

Congratulations to Guild President Lynda Laceby and to S.A.C. Association President Dr. William Laceby, (the first time in the history of St. Andrew's a husband and wife team have held the positions simultaneously) for a most successful event.
